Theme: Software Engineering Innovation Everywhere

Asia-Pacific Software Engineering Conference (APSEC) is the leading international conference in software engineering and technology in the Asia-Pacific region. APSEC 2007 will bring together researchers and practitioners from industry, academia, and government to share the state of the art technology in software engineering and seek to explore emerging challenges in software engineering innovation. With the increasingly pervasive nature of embedded and ubiquitous software, our lives are increasingly dependent on the software. Over the next years, all kinds of embedded, personal, and enterprise application software will be connected together with each other, and will cover the globe. This is expected to bring about a sea change in software engineering.

December 3 (Monday): Workshops

Accountability and Traceability in Global Software Engineering (ATGSE2007)

Management and Economics of Software Product Lines (MESPUL)

Software Patterns and Quality (SPAQu'07)

December 4 (Tuesday): Workshops and Tutorials

Service Oriented Architecture

Software engineering education

Software Productivity Analysis and Cost Estimation (SPACE'07)

Tutorial 1: Muhammad Ali Babar,

“Evaluating Product Line Architectures:
Methods and Techniques “

Tutorial 2: Michael Jackson,

“The Problem Frames Approach to Software Engineering “

December 5 (Wednesday): Keynote, Papers, Posters and Reception

Keynote: Michael Jackson, “Specialising in Software Engineering “

Requirements
Engineering,
Aspect-Oriented Software

Testing/Analysis,
Metrics/Measurement

Services-Oriented/Web,
Components/Reuse,
Maintenance/Evolution

Posters and Reception

December 6 (Thursday): Keynote, Papers, Exhibitions and Banquet

Keynote: Hideyuki Tokuda, (Title TBD)

Formal Methods,
Secure Software

Architecture/Design,
Processes
